

Consent for Publication

I am a researcher conducting a project on the Twitter writing community. I have been looking at how members of this writing community connect with one another and the work that they share. I have contacted you because I would like to include one (or more) of your tweets in a research publication. The tweets I would like to use are those I replied to on Twitter. I will provide you with full attribution for your text, using the full text of the tweet, your screen name, Twitter handle, and a screenshot of the tweet, like so:

Christian Howard @CFHoward1 · Jul 29

Amazing podcast by Circulating Spaces about storytelling and animation work being done at Ghost Animation in Kolkata, India!
pages.shanti.virginia.edu/Circulating_Space/

Please respond by Friday, September 6, 2019 if you do not wish for me to quote your tweet. If I have not heard from you by that date, I will assume I have your permission to proceed with publication.

You can reach me by email at christian.howard@bucknell.edu if you have any questions or would like further information.

Thank you for your consideration!